More than 1,000 professionals come together to reflect on the challenges of the legal profession

More than 1,000 professionals in the world of law meet today at the headquarters of the Mutua Madrileña in Madrid to attend the sixth edition of the Legal Management Forum, an event organized by Wolters Kluwer and Inkietos. Awarded for three consecutive years (2016,2017 and 2018) as the best legal event of the year, and in 2018 with the Bronze Puñetas Award granted by the Association of Legal Communicators and Reporters (Acijur), the meeting has been consolidated as a reference in the sector.

Under the Honorary Presidency of HM King Felipe VI, the 2019 edition is developed under the motto Rethinking the legal profession , and it is proposed to reflect on the challenges and opportunities of the market.

The day, which can also be followed in streming , will have about 30 national and international experts. Among them are the American analyst Jordan Furlong; Michele DeStefano, professor at the University of Miami and Founder of LawWithoutWalls; Heidi K. Gardner, a professor at the Center of the Legal Profession at Harvard Law School and an expert in smart collaboration; or Alex Hamilton, CEO of Radiant Law, will share their experience and try to provide professionals with tools and ideas to anticipate changes and trends in the sector.

Likewise, attendees can follow the debate on leadership and office management among the managing partners of some of the most important firms. Fernando Vives, president of Garrigues, will participate in this colloquium; Jorge Badía, CEO of Cuatrecasas; Salvador Sánchez-Terán, managing partner of Uría Menéndez, and Carlos Rueda, managing partner of Gómez-Acebo & Pombo.

The event kicked off Wednesday at the headquarters of the IE Business School, with three practical and parallel itineraries dedicated to legal project management and pricing, cybersecurity and realistic technology for offices, and emotional intelligence, human resources and professional careers.

Plenary Session

The inauguration will be carried out by Rosalina Díaz, CEO of Wolters Kluwer Spain, and Emilio Martínez, president of Inkietos. After the welcome, the plenary session will begin, which, led by the journalist Glòria Serra, will give way to seven presentations and round tables.

Gaining efficiency, eliminating the obstacles that usually separate the different areas of the offices, will be the idea that focuses the intervention of Heidi K. Gadner in his presentation on intelligent collaboration.

The new business models, aging and the generational change that entails, or the importance of putting the customer experience at the center, will be topics that will be addressed at the discussion tables, in which high-level speakers will participate attendees can transfer their doubts or questions.

A space will also be dedicated to talk about the future of law, a cross-cutting theme of the day. The table will be attended by Eduardo Cosmen, managing partner of Grant Thornton Prosecutor; Natalia Martos, CEO of the Legal Army; Alberto Mata, legal director of Deutsche Pfandbriefbank AG in Spain; Marc Molins, managing partner of Molins & Parés; Elena Otero-Novas, Legal Director and secretary of the Vodafone Spain Council; Pedro Rueda, managing partner of Araoz & Rueda and Santiago Thomás de Carranza, co-founder partner of Thomás de Carranza Abogados

The day will end with a legal drinks meeting in the gardens of the Mutua Madrileña, where, in a relaxed atmosphere, attendees and speakers can exchange impressions, ideas and experiences.
